PANKO Starts Cooking with the Kids

Panko started cooking with the kids to teach and promote healthy eating and care for the environment. Apart from getting to eat lunch, it is an opportunity for the kids to learn lifetime skills through practicing basic maths skills such as counting & measuring; they will also gain social skills by working together and communicating during cooking. The cooking helps the kids to accept responsibility because each child has a task to complete to contribute to the meal preparation and cleanup.
Time for Harvesting Vegetables and Learning

Harvesting our learning garden was a rewarding experience for the kids. We were able to harvest 2 kg of tomatoes, 3 kg of garden eggs, 3 kg of sweet potato, ½ kg of carrot, five heads of cabbage and no harvest from watermelon and cucumber as they were heavily attacked by insect pests. The kids decided to sell some of the vegetables to learn how farmers grow food and sell them at the market. The remaining of the vegetables was eaten as desert and others were included in the participatory cooking, where the kids learn about healthy eating habits. We learn about the soil; cultural practices; yield and the challenges of going organics; and how some crops are more susceptible to pests and diseases than others among other learning.

PANKO Starts to Recruit more Kids Against January 2021

Panko has started to enroll additional kids against January, 2021. Despite the plans to enroll more kids, we are still challenged with inadequate structures to accommodate more kids. So we are looking forward to an immediate solution of putting up temporary shed/structures and hoping that in the near future we will be able to put up permanent structures for smooth running of the center.
